

STRIKE OVER.

The Ranks of the Duquesne Strikers Broken.

Between Five and Six Hundred of Them Go to Work.

They Nearly Fall Over Each Other in Their Effort to Get Through the Gates When the Seven O'clock Whistle Blew—Litigation Will Be Continued.

DUQUESNE, Pa., Aug. 9.—Between 500 and 600 men, acting unanimously, as previously agreed on, effectively struck at 8 o'clock this morning, suspending all their work at the steel mills of Carnegie and the Homestead. They returned to work in a body, and the soldiers were not required to protect them. The repair men had the mill ready for running, steam was turned on, and several departments were almost full and began to turn out finished steel.

There were many members of the new amalgamated lodges formed here since the strike began among those who went back to work and they did not openly or with fear of what their co-workers would say. There was no disorder at all. Small crowds of the men who had not taken advantage of the offer of Superintendent Morrison stood near the mills, guarded by the soldiers, watching the return, but they said never a word. The battalion had been drawn up in marching order and was kept in line, fully armed, for two hours, but no word of command was given. Some of the most stalwart of the strikers were in the main returning to work.

One of them said: "We have been watching the course of events very closely, and while we would have done all we could to help the Homestead, we have seen that it is better that the company meet business, and that we could not win without a struggle that would have been too hard for men who have families. We talked this over and we are glad now that we took such a neutral stand."

The officials were much pleased with the action of the men, and all is pleasant. The news at Homestead had a depressing effect on the strikers there, but there was no sign of wavering in the strike.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 8.—Secretary Loveloy of the Carnegie Steel Co., was asked Monday morning by a United Press representative what was the plan of his company toward the Homestead strikers. He said: "We have started in on the question of law and order, and it will be some time before we can be anywhere from fifty to one hundred and fifty more informations on murder and aggravated riot charges made against the Homestead strikers before we are through with them. We are proceeding carefully, and get our facts well before arriving at a charge of crime is made. We mean to make no mistake, and the best detective skill in the country has been engaged. We have officers of long experience at work in Homestead, and the informations I make are on every point gathered by those men who are producing evidence to give sworn testimony. There would have been more informations before this, but for the fact that many strikers engaged in riot have run away. At present, with the exception of those that are being gathered, and when they return information will be made against them and they will be arrested. If they do not come back they will be followed up until they are arrested and brought back for trial."

The roof of No. 17, occupied by an Optical Co., a leather and saddle factory, and warehouse, also caught. Fleischman & Co.'s building was also soon ablaze, and Schlegel's Orchestra Hall was also afire. The fire was gotten under control, and a careful estimate places the loss at $200,000 with an insurance of about $75,000.

ASTRABAD

Gains the Ominous Name of "The City of the Plague."

Death Roll From Cholera There Reaches Many Thousands.

Mobs Go Wild Over the Liquor Trade Which is Confounded With the Terrible Cholera.—The Government Sends Cossacks to Secure.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 9.—A dispatch from Astrabad, a city of Persia, whose pestilential atmosphere has gained for it the ominous name of "City of the Plague," says that the mollahs or priests, whose influence with the populace is very powerful, are practicing that the outbreak of cholera is due to the sale of alcoholic liquors. Their language excited the populace to frenzy. Mobs gathered in the vicinity of the mosques, and demanded that the police be called to abolish the liquor traffic. Rude crowds forthwith made upon the drum shops, which were plundered. The mob destroyed the goods of a number of Armenian traders, who are Russian subjects. The Russian consul, fearing that the mob would attack him and that he might be attacked, telegraphed to St. Petersburg for assistance.

The government at once gave orders for the dispatch of twenty-five mounted Cossacks, which have arrived at Astrabad, and will be sent to the seat of the calamity. The city is situated on a small stream that flows into Astrabad bay, which opens into the Caspian sea, and a Russian gun-boat has ascended this stream and is now anchored off Astrabad.

The Russian legation at Teheran, the capital of Persia, was informed of the work of the mob, and De Buozou, the Russian minister, has demanded compensation for the riotous acts of the populace. The shah of Persia, who is not in the city, has been advised that he has been informed of the outbreak of cholera in Teheran, and he will immediately return to that city.

OUTLAWS GO TO CHURCH.

They Drop Something in the Contribution Box and Soon Take Their Leave.

UINTONK, Pa., Aug. 9.—While the little congregation at a Methodist church at Smithfield were engaged in their usual devotions, the leaders of the gang, gamblers, Fred Coddell, Jack Ramsey, rode up to the church door and hatched their horses. Contrary to the expectations of the few people who saw them ride up, the bandits knocked the dust off their chaps, combed their hair and walked into the church with as much unconcern as though they were regular communicants.

They did not carry their rifles with them, but in the two large belts which they wore had their large revolvers. They had taken their pistol on either side of their chaps and would permit no one to go to them. This was done to prevent an alarm being spread. Almost every one in the church was frightened nearly out of his wits, and had the outlaws permitted it the church would have been closed in a few minutes.

One of the persons who was in the church at the time said that the people prayed more earnestly for their present safety than for the future. When the congregation had withdrawn, the robbers both contributed. A few minutes before the services ended the outlaws quietly left the church and rode away, to the great relief of the congregation.

Several railroad men attempted to rescue him, but he was swept under the railroad bridge and drowned.

HYDROPHOBIA.

A Pittsburgh Man's Curious Summons Since the Whoos Boy.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 9.—Five years ago this month, while playing on the street, John S. Alles was wounded upon by a big dog. Before he could escape the dog tore a piece out of his left leg just above the knee. The boy was laid up several days but the wound had not healed. The doctor who first thought of it—until a year afterward to the day when the little fellow became sick. As the day wore on he became excitable and feverish, but could not be given either water or sleep.

At 10 o'clock, the hour of the time when he had been bitten a year before, he was seized with a terrible spasm. Four strong men were required to hold him while he writhed and barked like a dog and foamed at the mouth during the convulsive seizure. His strength had been exhausted he became unconscious and was put to bed. When he awoke the trouble was gone. He was weak and exhausted, but perfectly rational. The day from the first attack had a bilious complexion, but he had the stories they told him of his actions. In a day or two he was as well as ever.

Every year afterward at the same time of the year, at the set hour he suffered a relapse, but the malady was each time fully recovered without a trace. As he grew to manhood the attacks became more violent and it required more force to control him, but otherwise there was no change. He is now under the care of Dr. H. H. Haigh, who, after hearing the evidence, asked them to furnish bond in the amount of $1,000. The young men were unable to furnish the bond and were located in the city, but young fellows are very well known in the city. They married sisters. Their wives were in the house at the time of the arrest. Charles R. Chisholm was, until a few weeks ago, a special bailiff.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 9.—About a week ago a man was captured in the act of counterfeiting money. A few days ago a man named J. H. Denford, who is a merchant in Savannah, was arrested at the same charge, and was locked up at the station-house. For several weeks he was sold his bread and water, and he was exhausted, but perfectly rational. The arrest of Sturgis and others had been made upon the parties who were handling the money.

A CARD.

There appeared right in the middle of our items from this place in last Saturday's LEADER, a low down, mean, understanding "tall twister," reflection on the good citizens who did not go to the Christian Church. How this "tall twister" ever came to be placed with the items we gave you we cannot tell. Suffice it to say that the Christian Standard will print it, and will say now and for all time to come that we are doing noticing these dirty "tall twisters" that have been so free with your constituents from T. DEGOMAN.

[Those immediately interested understand that there are two correspondents of THE PUBLIC LEDGER at Springfield. The article referred to above was written in our correspondence from that place on Friday. By some mistake it became inserted in our column. We did not know that it was a reflection upon anyone or it would not have been published. EDITOR LEINGER.]

Statistics of Murder Committed in the United States.

A gentleman who was seated in the lobby of the Girard Building, says the Philadelphia Record, chattering with an official from the coroner's office, said: "I saw an article in a leading English weekly last week, day before yesterday, should be of interest to you, and I will copy it for you." Some of its figures, which are given, some as statistics I ever came across. The article was headed: 'A Murderer's Paradise,' and had been written by a man who, for two years, had made a study of the murder statistics of this country.

"According to them there were 4,290 murders committed in the United States during 1890 and 5,906 during 1891, a substantial increase of 1,616. It has been done in the most terrible manner during the two years under various headings. Quarrel, he said, were responsible for 2,184 murders in 1890 and 2,830 in 1891, and by quarrels he did not mean drunken brawls. Murders which took place while the murderer was under the influence of liquor numbered 1,635 in 1890 and 1,777 in 1891, and it was pointed out that the so-called prohibition cities furnished more murders in proportion to their populations than did the non-prohibition places. Murders committed by unknown persons were unknown numbers, but will have a day set apart upon which to monopolize public attention as far as possible.

The flora of Montana will be shown at the World's Fair by collection as complete as the world's flora. The state has about 1,000 different varieties of wild flowers, and of these 800 have already been collected. The exhibit will be a display of the most beautiful forage plants. Many of the states are preparing similar exhibits of their flora.

Wisconsin has asked that May 29th, 1865, be designated as Wisconsin Day, the 50th anniversary of the admission of the state into the Union, and it desires to celebrate it in an appropriate manner so that all the people will be invited to participate in the day's events.

In the Government Building at the World's Fair will be exhibited the results of the astronomical surveys made by act of Congress, May 18th, 1795, for executing surveys of Government lands. The chain was made by Benjamin Rumford, of Paris, and cost $1,000, and is still in the same hard box in which it was sent out by the manufacturer.

Wrote the Northwestern scribe: "A collection was in session that the Washington State World's Fair Building would require 307,000 square feet of floor space.

It is estimated that the building will be 160 feet wide and 1,920 feet long, and will have a day set apart upon which to monopolize public attention as far as possible.

At the bottom, probably 1,300 feet below us, and toward the center, there was a great gash in the rock, one tenth of the diameter of the crater, the pipe of the volcano; its channel of communication with lower regions, filled with incandescent if not molten lava, glowing and burning; with flames trailing to the sky, its surface, and emanations, resembling as from a wood fire, lighted by tongues of flickering flame which issued from the cracks in the surrounding slopes.
